Problem Statement:
A good online scheduling application doesn't exist

Details:
I noticed this problem when trying to keep track of my assignments for my different classes. I tried to write my assignments down in a google doc, but would forget to check. I downloaded some apps but they all send either too much or too little notifications, and I can't enter which exact times to send a notification. I wish that there were more options to personalize the apps. Mainly students and working people experience this problem.
